

Robb Report

JUNE 17, 2020

Two New Luxe Hotels That Offer Easy Getaways From New York City (and Yes, They're Open)

Escape to the beach at The Roundtree, Amagansett or the mountains at Kenoza Hall.

The hotel sits across the street from Kenoza Lake

If mountains and lakes are more your thing, drive two-and-a-half hours north of Manhattan to Kenoza Hall, which opened June 12th. The latest property from Foster Supply, who also own and run The DeBruce, Arnold House, North Branch Inn, and Nine River Road, Kenoza Hall is the collection's most luxurious property yet. Perched on a 55-acre lakefront retreat surrounded by the glorious Catskill Mountains, the 22-room hotel sits in a meticulously restored white clapboard former boarding house that dates back to the 1880s.

The building's Victorian roots are highlighted in the new interior design, made up of custom wallpaper, antique paintings, and bespoke furniture like plush velvet chairs, sleigh beds, and wooden writing desks that double as vanities. Guests can relax in the Sunroom, with its newly-added fieldstone fireplace, and the cozy Map Room, which is lined with guidebooks and vintage maps of the region. There's also a bar and restaurant and, out back, a swimming pool and the Hemlock Spa. (While not fully open yet, the restaurant currently offers outdoor seating for breakfast and dinner service and picnic lunches during the day.)

Each of Kenoza's 22 rooms has a unique footprint

Canoes and rowboats await those who want to glide along Kenoza Lake, and there are miles of trails around the property that are ripe for exploration. Later, head to the Kneipp-inspired Hemlock Spa (scheduled to open mid-summer), which brings a welcome wellness element to Foster Supply—and this part of the Catskills, for that matter. Aside from treatments rooted in naturopathy and hydrotherapy, the facilities include outdoor walking paths with sensations designed to stimulate the senses, curated gardens, a barrel sauna, a hot tub and a Movement Studio for classes in aerial yoga, sound therapy, guided meditation and more.

In keeping with current guidelines, all rooms are thoroughly cleaned and disinfected and high-touch amenities like throw blankets, throw pillows, and magazines have been removed. Additionally, no one will enter the room during your stay unless you specifically request the room to be cleaned. Face masks and hand sanitizer are provided and all staff are required to wear face masks. Rooms start at $499 per night, suites at $669 per night.

